INTRODUCTION

This teaching will be about a subject that is unknown to mankind at this time. We are bringing into the third dimension a wealth of new ideas that will prove to be that which will promote the unfolding of Consciousness into a new level. What could be new to mankind that has never been discussed before?

That which is new must be something that is not coming from an historical past. That which is new will not find a host of sympathizers to share in agreement with. And so that which is new by its very nature will seem strange, unusual, and unreal. It is with great delight that we are giving this information out finally, after the immense amount of time that it has taken mankind to get to this point.

By now you are indeed wondering what this new idea could be, and I will tell you. The Father God who alone knows what will unfold is establishing on the Earth at this time a corps of people who can lead others into the knowledge that all are indeed part of the Infinite Wholeness and all are that which identifies the Father/Mother God. At this time, more than at any other time, pouring forth in unlimited abundance, is an energy that can be identified as spiritual and can be felt in each and everyone's mind as that which is there to promote the cleansing of the layer of illusion that has separated man from his Source since time began.

Certainly one would ask whether this energy can be capable of such a monumental task. For illusion has engulfed us for eons, and has proved to be great enough to have prevented the evolutionary proceedings which would have otherwise been mankind's nature, as that which is infinitely unfolding itself into a forever movement of newness.

One could call this a cleansing period and that would not be too far from the truth. But it would not be a strong enough statement for more than cleansing is going on here. We are entering a period when what will come forth will be a new definition of humankind, a new definition of our true nature and a new definition of where we are to turn for the road map of our destiny.

And so, this is indeed a time of considerable change. The teachings in this book will provide the focus for your consciousness to examine within itself the undeniable shakeup that it is beginning to become aware of. There will be many other experiences that will also point the way as you open up to the cleansing and the experiencing of your true identity. Most significantly you will come to know that you are part of the Infinite Wholeness that is the Father/Mother God expressing.

As these pages unfold let your attention be turned to the movement that they cause in your mind, as it experiences the truth and resonates to it. The vibratory rate at which you are functioning will increase and you will begin to sense that you are indeed a Being of Light. Your Being is soon to be expanding into another experience of newness as is its function throughout eternity.

Graciously allow this movement, as it is in the allowing that the painless and wonderful unfolding will happen most naturally. This book is given to you with unbounded love, from a teacher who wants more than anything to enfold you in the Oneness of which we are all apart with you consciously aware of the enfoldment.

TEACHINGS FOR TRANSFORMATION

THE TRUTH OF BEING

The time that you are living in is the time that you should be learning what the Truth of your Being is. I intend to take you on a journey that will allow you to better understand that you are more than you think you are and that you are more than our current understanding of humankind would have you believe.

This journey that we will be taking could not be possible if it were not for the abilities of a few who chose to listen to their inner voice and who chose to give up the sense of authorizing their lives. We will begin our journey in a remote place and time long before there were people who could write about what was happening. This time can best be described as the period of the darkness.

This period of time can justly be called dark because it was a period when neither sun nor moon nor stars shone and the earth and the heavens were only an idea in the Creator's mind. This time heralded the arrival of an angel of mercy who saw that there was a need for mankind to come into existence and went to her Father and requested that a place be prepared for the birthplace of a new created Presence. The Father spoke with her and requested that she inform him the reason for this Presence. The angel told him that this Presence would bring about a further completion of his Divine Plan and furthermore this Presence could be counted on to help him fulfill his gift of life to the furthest reaches of the universe. And so the Father agreed to send an emissary to locate a suitable place to bring about this Presence. The emissary returned to the Father and told him that he had found a place that had the suitable coordinates for that emergence of life to come into existence, and that this place was closely related to another planet that had recently given birth to life. The Father agreed to his emissary's recommendation and soon there was a colorful array of fireworks in which there was created, much to the delight of those in attendance, a glistening ball of brilliance, caressed by the sun and bathed by the stars, shimmering in bright innocence and glowing with the potential for new life. The Father looked at this work and immediately said he was pleased. There followed an array of happenings that included the creation of birds, beasts, flowers, plants and trees and the placement of a beautiful garden in which the new inhabitants, who by this time had been identified, could dwell.

As soon as this had been accomplished the Father said that he wanted to bring the new couple to this garden himself and so it was arranged that he would accompany them. He informed them that he had no intention of abandoning them and that he wanted to give them a constant Presence that they could count on to abide within them, each receiving a Presence that would be directly from him. And so they began living in their new home, beget and began raising children.

Now we will travel to a time and place where there is dwelling a young couple who are in the process of getting a divorce. They live in the city in the twentieth century and have much in common with the primal couple. The parallels are significant. The primal couple had the indwelling Presence of the Father as did our couple from the city. Both couples were raising children, and both couples felt that they were trying to do the best job that they could. They each were struggling with pressures that they felt they had little control over.

The primal couple lacked control over the circumstances they found themselves in. They were in a garden with a myriad of created things round and about them. They had children who wanted to be different than their parents and they had each other to contend with. Our city couple lived in a small apartment, with neighbors and concrete all around them with children who wanted to do their own thing. Their relationship was rocky and they were preparing for divorce. They also had something else in common and this was a tendency to define themselves as separate from their Father. The city couple would go to church and would pray occasionally, and likewise the primal couple would offer prayers, too. But neither couple claimed their birthright and inheritance which was the ever available Presence within.

Neither couple knew that this Presence could be counted on to guide them through their daily lives and could be counted on to give them the peace that they so often wanted. And so our couples lived in a fairly frenetic state much of the time, trying to decide what course of action would be the best. They often felt like they were being chased by a tiger who was constantly nipping at their heels and this constant harassment led each to blame and criticize each other and their circumstances for the problems they were having. They often felt like giving up.

Enter into this scene, as will happen at all times when hopelessness is being felt, the arrival of a host of helpers sent from the Father who use every opportunity to nurture the awareness that each originates from him. It was difficult for both couples to realize that life exists both on the visible and the invisible planes. What with all the stuff around them that could be touched and felt and smelled and heard, they were overwhelmed with that aspect of life called the visible world. And so often, the available Presence and the host of helpers were unable to be accessed. What a pity, for the true experience of who they really were, could not happen.

For many years now, more years than can be counted, there has been a significant closing off of the accessing of guidance and peace. For many years there has been an increasingly narrow awareness of the wonderful truth that each of us has available within. Our lives are significantly altered and significantly diminished by this shutting off of the Truth of our Being. Perhaps the reasons for this appear obvious. There is so much that jumps out at us absorbing our attention and little that promotes the search for the within. Your own mind is really the only place where you can access this guidance and peace. What a marvelous transformation we all would experience if everyone began truly listening to the truth within.

Let us look at some of the changes that would happen. First, there would be a ceasing of emphasis on the acquiring of wealth. Everyone would know that they already had everything, for each of us is a part of the Whole and not separate from it. Each of us would realize that there is no gain to be had by having more than anyone else.

If we are all part of the Whole than it is in our best interest to cherish the Whole for it is ourselves we are cherishing. That includes all aspects of creation in this world and beyond.

If we were listening we would realize that our capacity for growth and evolution is endless. Our Being, who we really are, has a function of being forever new. It is constantly emerging out of itself into a newness. We would begin to view the world with fresh eyes and expectations on a moment to moment basis. The greatest joy would be the knowledge that creation, All That Is, is the movement of love. This knowledge would be experienced and felt in everything.

This process of becoming aware of the truth within can be best experienced by the use of meditation. Meditation is about the only way at this point that we can successfully shut out the conditioned programming we are all subject to all the time, everywhere. How wonderful to go into the quiet of your Being and to find that the quiet actually is a place of experience that far exceeds anything in the visible world! And most importantly it is a place of relationship. A place of the most intimate and divine relationship one could ever imagine. Here we become connected to the All is One, the Mother/Father God, and the Everlasting.

We shall now rejoin our couples and proceed with our journey. Both mothers experienced something unique. They experienced the thrill of giving birth. This is unique because it represents something that only happens if a woman chooses to be in relationship with a man.

Sometimes the results of this union bears no fruit, but frequently a woman will find herself with child and the beginning of a wonderful experience will follow. Giving birth results in the experience of connection at the most engrossing level with another Being. However, this degree of involvement is not always something that a woman is prepared for. In no other way can one human interact so profoundly with another than in giving birth. And yet, physical birth is only one part of a much larger birthing that is going on. Physical birth brings into the physical plane the arrival of Consciousness from the fourth dimension, or the invisible plane. So at this point of entry, life from the Father now is present to be experienced in the third dimension, or the visible plane.

What does this represent to the one who is giving birth? It represents an opportunity to bring forth life and to bring forth a new meaning into the world. Each child is unique and an individual expression of the Father. Each child represents an indivisible and yet individual aspect of the Whole. How could something be both indivisible and individual, you ask?

Let us look at an example of something else that is both individual and indivisible. That something is the flow of water. The water is flowing as puddles, streams, rivers, lakes and oceans. The water becomes visible as it rains, hails and snows. The water manifests on the earth in many ways and then evaporates into the atmosphere to become clouds and a part of the air that we breathe. Eventually it becomes rain again. So it is with ourselves. We are visible and connected invisibly, always part of a greater Whole. The example of water is also demonstrative of the movement of the Whole, as in changing weather patterns, just as our Consciousness is one of a larger movement of the Father.

You will find that you are forever connected to a much greater experience of Self when you live in the context of the Whole, or the connection with All That Is. Why is this so? Because this connection puts you in touch with the infinite intelligence that is the nature of the Father. This intelligence can be accessed by turning inward to your guide, the forever, loving Presence within.

10 From ONE Who Loves You

What a wonderful feeling of safety we can all experience trusting in the intelligence and the love that put us here in the first place! And to think it is really available to us at all times and in all places! You are at the point in your development when you are ready to grow as a conscious experience of the Father and to begin to access your inheritance. You are at a point where you will soon begin to feel a wonderful sense of possibility that you have never experienced before.

Suddenly, as if from out of nowhere, you will feel the influx of love, intelligence and infinite possibility that you never knew existed. For we are at a crux in human development. Now is the time when the balance wheel is steadily shifting. There are more on the side of awakening, both in the visible and in the invisible planes than there are those who are sleeping or self-authorizing.

What does one do with this knowledge? How is one supposed to respond to information like this? First of all, it is necessary to allow curiosity to enter in and to let go of conditioned thinking. It is hard to let go of beloved concepts that we have held to be the truth for generations. Concepts that our parents and grandparents have held, and concepts that we have been taught in our churches and synagogues. We view these concepts as solid building blocks on which to construct our lives. We would be allowing ourselves to be whisked along by the tide of 'new thought' if we were to let in even an ounce of change in those hallowed concepts. The Father says however, "Behold, I make all things new". We have been given the gift of curiosity which has been a great blessing to mankind in many aspects of human endeavor, so don't throw away this gift when it comes to exploring the Truth of your Being.

You are not following a guru or a fanatical cult. You are exploring whom you really are...much more than your limited thinking allows at this time. Let us look more closely at how you can explore your Truth. First, you must become aware that your thinking processes are a part of the defense system that was put into place eons ago when mankind began self-authorizing. Don't immediately stop thinking because you must have a solid replacement before you let go of your old ways. Remember, that as in everything there must be a period of exploration and practice and conviction in the Truth of your Being as you experience it, before you let go of the old ways. Remember you are not alone in this process. For relationship is what it is all about! You have your Divine Presence guiding you.

Your Divine Presence resulted from the Father who has assigned an enlightened one to each of us. This guide knows you intimately now and has known you since the beginning. Can you believe that you have been accompanied with through eons of time? Your awakening process has been going on through many lifetimes and many incarnations.

Reincarnation is indeed the fact of existence. You were created originally from the moment life began, and you are an integral part of All That Is. It is hard for or us to believe in this age of scientific verification, but indeed, it is the reality. Your life here is a learning time when you have the opportunity to wake up to your truth. Soon however, the incarnating process or rebirth on this planet will no longer happen for we are on the verge of awakening and then all the lessons will be unnecessary. Our knowledge will be complete. We will replace learning and thinking with knowing.

This knowing will be experienced as operating from a place of complete intuition without the slightest hint of doubt or uneasiness about what we are doing. It will just be the perfect expression at that moment. For we will be aligned with the vibration of the Father, living with and moving to heavenly harmonics. Shall we take a look at our families once more? For here we find an example of a revelation happening. This revelation involves the dynamics between the husband and the wife. They have recieved a gift from their Father...that is the gift of the Divine Presence, and they have recieved a gift from each other...that gift is the gift of relationship. Each person in the relationship has a choice of either partaking in that relationship and all the treasures it holds, or letting that relationship go stagnant and wither from lack of involvement and care.

12 From ONE Who Loves You

Each person also has the same opportunity to partake of the treasures of his/her Divine Presence or build a thicker shell, separating him/her from this authentic relationship. Why is this revelation? Because it reveals that relationship must be involved in and with, to blossom and bare fruit. This revelation suggests to all of us involved in a relationship that we must nourish and feed that seedling together to make it grow.

The Truth of your Being is that you are forever in a relationship with your guidance, given to you by your Father and ready and available for you to access. I want you to seriously attempt to quiet your thought and get in touch with this One who lives and abides within. Seriously and with all earnestness quiet your thoughts. Quiet the constant barrage of insinuations that this is silly, unreasonable and impossible. Quiet your need to get up and do something that must be done then quietly attune your consciousness to the void. This void is really the place where your peace can be accessed. The quality of the experience is not in the sense of accomplishment but in the letting go of the need to accomplish anything. What a wonderful experience to be in a place where nothing is expected of one but to just be there.

Here you can relax into communion with your guide and experience the joy of being with peace and love, divine intelligence and that wonderful at home feeling of perfect safety. As you join with on a regular basis you will hunger for this time and for the delightful connectedness that you experience.

As you become accustomed to the experience you will find that it accompanies you all day at any time or place. Your guidance is available without needing to do anything other than to become quiet, ask, and listen.

Now let us turn to an unusual aspect of who you are. Did you know that within you is the capacity to know truth? We so easily forget that this is an inherent part of our Being. Truth will be felt within as an experience of certainty that what we are experiencing is the right thing for us. It will be experienced as that which fits...like the right clothes or the right shoes. Truth is sensed as belonging in us and as us. The opposite of truth would be experienced as an uneasiness, ill fitting clothes or shoes, a sick feeling of that which does not belong and should be expunged.

Perhaps you would like to know what has given you the capacity to know truth. You were created in the image of your Father and He is the Way, the Truth and the Life, therefore you have an innate capacity to know Truth when you hear it. You also have the innate capacity to recognize the difference between feeling and simple emotion. True feeling, who you really are and what you experience at the heart level is vastly different from emotional reaction which occurs at the surface and is experienced as a temporary response to a person or situation. It is always best to live one's life from the deeper feeling level which can be counted on to maintain integrity over time.

Our primal couple knew that they were from the Source and Center of All that Is. They knew that they were descended from the Father. What could have caused them to forget so fast? It was the thrill of deciding on their own. They got hooked into the excitement of doing it on their own. It wasn't long before competitiveness entered the picture, and who then, was more competent than the other. This created a disparity in the perception of value and worth of each other and there came into existence a sense of lacking.

Judgement then had to be instigated to decide whether the actions of a person were as good or as valuable as another one's actions were. Out of this developed the sense of inferiority. Inferiority led to a deep seated feeling of unworthiness.

Unworthiness led to guilt and guilt led to shame which led to anger which led to violence which led to corruption which led to greed in an attempt to overcome a lack or inferiority. The circle of the defense structure was in place and embedded itself in the human psyche.

Continued use of this system strengthened and projected it into the mind set of everyone. This mind set then became known as the sinful nature of man. And this mind set became firmly entrenched around the globe.

14 From ONE Who Loves You

This sinful nature of man had to have its origin somewhere and so there came into the thoughts of mankind a split in the one Source and Center of All That Is. Mankind fabricated a powerful evil deity known as Satan. All of the aforementioned originated long before the bible came into existence, long before mankind had formalized religions and long before there were recorded in history, the happenings of man.

So you can see that the act of viewing oneself separate from the Prime Mover really was and is the cause of all the problems that seem to exist. If mankind were able to come back into alignment with his Source, the Father/Mother God, all problems would cease to exist for each would know that they have nothing lacking. They are complete, whole and free and are not separate from All That Is.

Now we shall begin to look at what our options are at this point in time. We have two. We can ignore this information or we can let it in. Letting it in would mean that we would have to open up a wedge in our hallowed belief system. We would have to permit this new information a place to penetrate into. The defense system that has been created in each of us that we call the ego will begin to react violently as it does not want the status quo to be upset in anyway. It will use habitual tools of judgement, belittling, demeaning, guilt making and on and on and on. Remember that the strategies your defense system uses do not represent a real presence. Only attempts to not allow your peace, for this represents its eventual annihilation.

If there were ever an opportunity to experience whom you really are, that opportunity is now. At this time there is a flowing forth into the three dimensional plane loving energy of a profound nature. There is a flux that is allowing more help to be available to mankind then ever before. There is also the occurrence of a tilt in the balance of conscious awareness which will swing our understanding of our relationship with All That Is into a higher level. No longer will we wonder whether there is a Prime Mover or whether there is engagement with us. We will know with a certainty that will be felt throughout the planet. We will witness events that will confirm this to us and this confirmation will take place in Consciousness. We do not need to wait for external events though, as the conviction of this can happen now as we turn inward and experience loving and divine guidance.

As we come to the end of our journey into the exploration of the Truth of Being, we return to our two couples and bid them farewell. Their life experiences are like the experiences of everyone and their available Presence from the Father is available to all as well. Let this teaching enliven your will to go within, and discover the ever available connection with All That Is.

THE AWAKENING

Deep within the heart of man there exists something that he is unaware of. There exists the wellspring of All That Is. This wellspring issues forth on a regular basis outpourings of love that provide its owner with the substance of All That Is. There are few who realize that creation is truly a product of the Prime Mover who has invested his creation with certain meanings that have as their underlying condition, the vibration of love.

Contrary to popular belief there are not many different conditions that are manifested in creation, but rather there really is only one substance or form that all share. Could it be possible that every single molecule and atom of matter is actually made up of the same thing? We ask this in disbelief because it flies in the face of all that we have been taught in our colleges and universities and contradicts all the scientific research that man has ever done.

Our rational thinking immediately discredits this for what about the fact of different chemical analysis of things and what about the different structures, shapes, textures, colors, temperatures and the huge variety of creation in all its immensity?

16 From ONE Who Loves You

There is on the face of this planet and throughout the universe and all the universes beyond, only one substance, only one meaning to All That Is. Issuing forth unceasingly and in infinite variety, creation manifests itself. This incredible movement of All That Is in the seen and the unseen worlds happens as the conscious experience of who you are. Issuing forth from the heart of you is All That Is. What does this mean?

Life, the movement of the Mother/Father God generates its meaning within Consciousness. The substance of All That Is, is meaning and this meaning is love. How could a substance that is tangible be in reality meaning? We must realize that form happens only when it is experienced. Form, in the three dimensional level generates within itself properties that in the unidimensional level do not exist as such. And we see that in the two dimensional level form is experienced differently.

It is now appropriate to begin thinking of form in the fourth dimensional level and to begin to experience life from this plane. In this plane life is experienced as meaning. The fourth dimensional level is ready to be experienced because mankind is at the threshold of awakening to the conscious experience of whom he really is.

Our experience is on the precipice of radical alteration which will be experienced by everyone. The never ending movement that is creation is about to expand to that level which includes the fourth dimension. We shall experience this change within ourselves and I will describe to you how you will begin to know that it is happening in you.

When you begin to question your cherished beliefs about everything, and you begin to feel that the building blocks of your reality are uncertain, you have entered that phase known as the unsettling time. This time can be at first fearful, for there is no solid ground within the heart and mind to hold firm to, it seems. I will give you the solution for this right away. Let go and delight in the flow. The hanging on is truly where the pain is felt.

This phase can last a long time or a short time depending on the degree of entrenchment you have created. Next you will feel the pull to go within. You no longer search the visible world so intensely. In the turning inward you are led to ask of Mind/Consciousness what this unsettling is all about? And you will strangely feel that this within place is truly where home is.

You will return to this place more and more and you will begin to feel the love and nourishment of this delightful and satisfying place. The three dimensional world will lose some of its appeal as the place where experience is happening and the within becomes the causal place the world external the effect.

You have opened the door to the fourth dimension and a plane of existence that will be infinitely satisfying as nothing in the three dimensional world ever could be. The ever expanding connectedness you feel here allows you to experience Wholeness that you never thought possible. Even as you read this, your Being, whom you really are is bursting forth with gladness that it now may have the chance to expand...as that is truly the function your Creator has given your Being...to expand into newness infinitely. If you could see your Being now you would see it leaping for joy as the newness occurs.

Of course the third dimension is there to be lived fully, so life, for a time will be lived on two planes. Largely, the difference will be in the meaning that comes forth in the third dimension and this meaning will be directed towards one thing...the further awakening of your Being to its divine origin. You will not experience this as accomplishing anything that you can take credit for. For taking credit is part of the entrenchment or past way of dealing with life that you are accustomed to.

In the fourth dimension life will be experienced as a connection with All That Is and in this connection there will be no room for separateness. Taking credit for things is part of the separate sense of self which was so isolating in the first place.

Your awakening will be something that will be experienced. It will not be an intellectual process although it will happen in mind which will reflect out to all else. Awakening will be a letting go, a yielding into that original of you that is already there. Your Being has been surrounded by the thin shell of illusion that you have created through lifetimes of self-authorizing. So you see that awakening is revealing the truth of whom you really are. Whom you really are is an individual and indivisible Wholeness, connected with All That Is, and the meaning of this Wholeness is Love.

What can I provide to you that will make this experience more easily accessed? I will tell you. You must undo the shell that keeps you from the reality of your truth. The shell was created in the first place because you chose to be separate. Choosing then is a key word here. We truly have the innate capacity to exercise free will. What are those things that have caused the separation? When we are separate from our source, we feel vulnerable. When we feel vulnerable we seek those strategies that will protect us. These strategies or defenses have built that system known as the ego or separated sense of self...in our thinking, which indeed, itself, is part of this defense system. But thinking you say, the hallowed and uniquely important function that separates us from the animals...how could this possibly be something that could be a defense?

When you are ready to experience it, thinking will be replaced with knowing. Knowing will be the way you will experience life and this knowing will be a connection with Divine Intelligence and with the Infinite Consciousness of which we are all apart.

At this point it is wise to continue thinking until you are in that place where knowing is happening. The infinite knowing that will begin to happen will connect you with the consciousness of all others, awake and not awake. You will experience all of it simultaneously. How could this be possible? In the Father's infinite plan, there exists a process or mind action which allows us to access Mind, specific and general. This process is really very simple and you can experience this now. This is the action known as telepathy. Telepathy is not a new concept and yet it is grossly misunderstood. It is understood to be available to only a few who are somehow different from the majority of others. However, telepathy is accessible to all. As you begin to clear conditioned thinking, and access the void which is really another word for clearness you can easily read the thoughts of others. In your head will come impressions and meaning from others without a word being spoken. You also can invite mind action from others in the distance, past, and future. As hard as this is to believe, it is the truth.

Let us begin to more fully describe what this thing called your Being is. Your Being is both a verb and a noun. Located directly down the center of your body, your Being is in actuality spiritual, yet able to be experienced. It is recognizable as movement which is accessible by going into the within or the state of conscious awareness. Your Being is your spiritual presence that is recognizable in the fourth dimension as that which identifies you. That is to say it is recognizable as spiritual body. I would like you to be able to experience your Being, who you really are and I would encourage you to go within and meditate and it will not be long before you begin to understand what has been written here.

You will soon recognize that your Being is the place that you can experience the Divine Presence of the Movement of All That Is. Your Being will feel to you like energy that is hard to describe and yet it is real. It feels almost like an electrical charge or a tingling or a sensation of liquid flowing through and in and around you. It is hard to describe because each person will experience it in that way which is appropriate to his/her own uniqueness. That is to say it is not a generic experience.

The experience of your Being will be felt in the manner that suits who you are. But you will have no doubt that you are experiencing it because it will be something that you have never felt before in the conscious way you are feeling yourself now. However, as strange as it may seem, your Being is the place where whom you really are is manifested as the Source and Center of your life. There will come a time that you will experience movement away from your body. It will be experienced as a lifting off or a leaving or a departure from the three dimensional frame of reference. When this happens you have come to a point where you are operating as both a three dimensional and a fourth dimensional Being. Often times this lifting off will happen at night. It will be experienced as a strange feeling of energy pulling away. Don't be alarmed, for there is no danger here and you do not have to worry that you are dying or having a mental breakdown. There is no cause for alarm, rather there is cause for rejoicing for truly it is a point of advancement or unfolding from the movement of your Being. Ever pressing to grow, your Being is ready for you to open up to the more of you that there is to be experienced. How wonderful that this knowledge is at last coming into the world for all to embrace...and how wonderful that at last you can know that there is truly more to your existence than the limited experiences you have had.

Life is opening up on many levels for people and people are experiencing all manner of things that they never thought possible. Soon people will understand that all things that they took for granted were, in fact, only temporary understandings that served a temporary purpose.

People will begin to understand that life is something that has no beginning and no end. It is time to wake up to your truth. It is truly time to wake up to the awareness of whom you really are. You are the Father/Mother God experiencing Himself/Herself.

Let this awareness penetrate deeply into your limited thinking and exude its deeper meaning to you. You will never experience yourself in the same way again, as you grow ever more aware of the Truth of this. The Awakening is NOW, imminently happening to everyone!

MESSAGE FROM JESUS

We shall now discuss something that will be surprising to many. Did you know that the reason that people are having such a difficult time with their lives is because they haven't discovered that life is not a solo experience? Our topic for this teaching will be how to breeze through life with the help of the Master, the One we know as Jesus. This Divine One whom the Father has assigned to be in charge of the awakening of the planet is forever available to each and every one of us. His love for mankind is unfathomable. I offer to you words from him as this writing continues. If there is one thing that Jesus would have you know it is that you are infinitely loved and infinitely valuable. He would like you to know that you can call on Him at any time, for He is available to all. He would like you to know that there is no problem that is too difficult or too messy for Him to help with. He would also like you to know that there is no problem too small for you to ask for guidance. He is available to guide you through each and every moment.

How could Jesus be available to our Consciousness and to the Consciousness of millions and billions of others? We ask this question because our thinking tells us that it is impossible. Let us examine this question more thoroughly.

In the Father's divine plan, Consciousness, our Minds, are all connected. This connection happens simultaneously. When we truly wake up, or become enlightened, we will be able to know All That Is and we will experience connection with All That Is. The 'glass' that is dark now will become clear. When Jesus was here on Earth he was fully awake. He experienced his connection with everything. When he transfigured into the invisible plane, he continued to be connected to All That Is. He has not left us for a moment.

Jesus knew that you would be in need of help to undo your limited thinking. He is responding to the tremendous desire on his part to bring us all into the awareness of our Oneness as creations of the Father. His desire encompasses all of mankind and knows no religious denomination or set of believers to be any more important than any other. All are loved infinitely. We can think of our sonship and daughtership to be absolute and real and unalterable. Creation is eternal and our Being is continually being metamorphosed into something new.

It is a forever fact of existence and is truly a wonderful place for us to hold our mind set on. Jesus would have you know that your Being is synonymous with Love. You are a Center of Peace and Love, each one. You can best express who you really are by letting in others and letting in your guidance.

We shall see that this letting in can happen best when you are experiencing peace. How can one experience peace? I will give you a way to do this. Go to a quiet place where you can be alone. Close your eyes and let all your thoughts flow past until they are gone. Focus your attention on the area between your eyes, ask to receive your peace. As you do this, you will find that you will experience a connection with a greater experience of the Reality of whom you are...a connection with All That Is.

What more would Jesus like to say to you? He wants you to know that there exists within each individual a living Presence direct from the Father. In addition to being able to access Jesus, you also have your own guide, personally assigned to you with the sole intent of bringing you to your awakened state, your state of fulfillment.

This guide has a name, an identity and he/she will inform you of that as your intimacy and relationship develops. Jesus had a guide on this plane prior to his full awakening.

Our guides are direct pipelines with Divine Intelligence, Love, and Peace. Be prepared for the unexpected for the minute you think you know, what and why and how things happen you get into conditioned thinking based on past experience. When you live your life from guidance and trust, life takes on a new quality. Everyday is a brand, new experience. The radicalness of this approach does not mean that you will be thrown about hither and yon, but rather that the common experiences you have will take on radically different meaning, and you will begin to see that things are happening for a reason, different from what you might have thought in the past. Guidance means living without fear, and it is possible to experience this safe and peaceful state much more. Eventually you will experience this state all the time.

Let us examine another facet of guidance. Guidance uncovers to you aspects of your self you did not know existed. As the realization of your sonship/daughtership grows, you will begin to manifest divine powers of healing and manifestation. Each person will have different aspects of Self revealed to them and these are too vast and wonderful to enumerate. Suffice it to say you have an adventure in Self discovery ahead. Isn't curiosity appropriate here? Yes!

VOICE OF TRUTH

I would like to tell you a story about someone that you think is not very significant in your life but in fact this person is very significant. This person is known by the name of Jesus. Jesus cannot truly be called a person because he is no longer incarnate on your planet, but he is involved in the most profound way with all of mankind. Jesus has the ability to be involved both individually and collectively with everyone. His Consciousness permeates All That Is.

24 From ONE Who Loves You

It is certain that you have had the experience at some time of feeling deeply connected to someone or something. You have felt love for a parent, a friend, a lover, a pet, a home, a place or to something. The experience that you have had has given you an idea of what joining is about and so you undoubtedly can understand when I tell you that Jesus is forever joined with you in the loving way I have mentioned.

There is no time and no place that Jesus is not available to you and there is no circumstances in which He will not hear your voice. That means you are never alone. The significance of these words is immense if you but pause to ponder on it. Never alone...NEVER! Jesus cannot force Himself on you however, and you must ask for His help.

Who is this one called Jesus anyway? He has been involved with you since the beginning of life on this planet as you know it. His involvement has taken many different forms and most recently He has been the VOICE coming through those who have listened and spoken as they have heard. Jesus is deeply motivated or desirous that you be able to come to a fuller understanding of your kinship with Him and with All That Is. He would like you to know that there is no time or place that you cannot access Him by quietly asking for the answer to your particular situation. Jesus does not want you to feel that you do not have the means at your disposal to live life abundantly for that truly is his desire...that all should live an abundant life, rich in the joyous blessings of your birthright or inheritance from the Father.

This inheritance is an unbelievably rich source of fulfillment and manifests in all areas of life. Fulfillment means that which truly brings into completion that aspect of your Being unfolding at that time. We cannot imagine anything more wonderful because even our imaginations are limited in the scope of what fulfillment might be.

Contrary to what we have been taught, life is not enriched by suffering in any way and it is not holy to suffer for the Father. Suffering is purely a remnant of limited or conditioned thinking and must come to an end. When we truly live from guidance we will discover that every condition of life is there for us to grow ever more aware of who we truly are... sons and daughters of the living Father/Mother God.

Jesus provides each and every one with His Presence and His unbounded Love, at all times ready to embrace the one who seeks. So, asking you will receive and seeking you will find is indeed the promise He has made to us. We can claim this promise today, at this moment. Now is the time to ask, dear ones, so go within to that place of quiet and listen for the Voice of Him who is always with you. It is Jesus, your friend and brother.

THE FOURTH DIMENSION

There exists within everyone a tendency to act as though there really is only one level of experience, that level is the three dimensional world as commonly experienced with the five senses.

Now we will explore another level of experience that happens when one is availing him/herself of the astonishing reality of the fourth dimension. This can be accessed by quieting oneself and listening or paying attention to Mind/Consciousness.

This dimension of reality is the fountainhead for all experience as it issues forth into the three dimensional world. The fourth dimension introduces into experience ...meaning. There truly is nothing that happens in the three dimensional world that does not have as its substratum the workings of Mind, or the fourth dimension.

Whenever you feel that life is senseless and meaningless be assured the assignment of this value has been set, not by Mind but by a judgement based on conditioned thinking without taking into account that all events are in the direct cause/effect relationship that is repre-

Even the smallest of choices can be made with guidance, joined to Divine Intelligence. Living from this relationship puts you in touch with Infinite Intelligence and is the Truth of our Being. We are supposed to live like this only we were waylaid eons ago and began living a separate existence from our Source.

Although this information seems risky to try because we feel that we will be treading in the dark with no reliable guide, we indeed have that guide right within our very Being. And so we are never alone in this way of living life. And indeed, this connection negates or makes the sense of separation disappear. Our age old problem is solved in an instance, in the twinkling of an eye, we realize our connection to the Infinitude of our Self, All That Is, the One Source infinitely expressed.

The fourth dimension shall be the place where millions soon will live their lives from and this will bring about the radical alteration of mankind. We will begin the progression into the forever newness which is our birthright. Now is the time to claim this way of living and let go of the limitations and roadblocks your three dimensional thinking constantly puts up for you. We are ready to move ahead as individuals, and as the unbounded Love from guidance makes itself manifest within your Being you will know in truth, that this is who and what you really are.

Our next teaching will focus on another aspect of your Divine Self which is your capacity to be healed and be a healer, for this too, is your birthright.

26 From ONE Who Loves You

sentative of Mind. This dimension of reality cannot possibly be experienced as harmful in any way as it does not realized anything as other than part of the Infinitude of itself. Fear or potential for harm is only possible when there is the sense of other which could cause harm. If all is part of the Infinite Wholeness than All Is One and nothing can be separate from that One. All is inclusive in itself .

So our learning now is to become more aware of this dimension of our reality and to begin to practice living our lives from here. We can begin to practice the discovery of this dimension by quieting our conditioned thinking and getting into that place where we can access the stillness of the within. The stillness is actually a channel or pipeline or field of Being which connects you to the Infinitude of your Being or your Divine Guidance. You can here begin to access Divine Intelligence which is available to each and every one as they learn that they are a part, an indivisible yet individual part of the Wholeness of the Infinitude of All That Is, the Mother/Father God, the Everlasting.

Let us take practical stock of this information at this point and bring it back to where you can understand it more fully. For example, you are in the store and are faced with buying a gift for someone. You do not have the slightest idea what would be appropriate for that one, and you choose to quiet your conditioned thinking and ask of guidance what would be most appropriate. You hear an answer, get a feeling about something or become aware of something that just seems to 'come' to you. You go with your hunch and to your surprise this was a very appropriate gift. The receiver wonders how you knew.

Sometimes you try this and it does not work so it is easy to fall back into conditioned thinking, basing decisions on old patterns. The receiver may like this choice too, so then the conditioned pattern of choosing becomes reinstated. The choice made from guidance however, will be actually the best choice and as you experience and experiment with this more and more it feels more and more right for you to live your life from this place.

THE HEALER WITHIN

Everyone on the face of the globe can find within themselves pathways to healing which are necessary until we have given up the conditioned pattern of thinking which allows sickness to exist.

Mankind will soon come to know that he is the repository of a wealth of know-how that can bring him to perfect health and happiness on all levels of his existence. Contrary to current thinking, physical problems can be ended simply by turning to the within and focusing on that part of the body which is in need of healing and asking for healing. When one quiets his conditioned thinking and gets into that place of the void or clearness he has access to his Divine Healer within.

We are at the point of development where we can now find new expressions of our Infinitude. Healing of ourselves and others is totally appropriate and within the range of powers we have inherited as our birthright. Each individual will bring to bear his/her unique way of expressing this power. Some will use the spoken word, others touch and still others will know which substance would be most beneficial. Eventually sickness will become the exception to our experience and we will radiate new and vibrant health which is also our birthright.

There is never a time when we cannot access this power. There is never a time when our abilities to heal cannot be experienced. We must, however, learn to access that information. Our present ways do not allow for the penetration of this know-how to make itself available. We must learn to empty and quiet our minds and ask that healing be claimed as our birthright.

In the quiet the knowing will appear and in the trust and faith that this is what should be experienced, healing occurs. The time frame and the process of the healing are in divine hands and as such will be different than what our conditioned thinking would suggest. It truly is in the trust and the letting go that there could be any other option than to experience healing and to experience our Wholeness, that healing happens.

Now let us examine in greater depth the means that will become available. Within the quiet of your Being there exists untold resources of unlimited intelligence. We literally can draw on the intelligence of the universe or the intelligence of All That Is. There are a host of helpers available to work on your condition and to bring about full, abundant health. You may ask this host of helpers in the quiet of your Being to bring about the healing you desire. It is important to remember that you are never alone in this or in anything you do and that your guidance and your connection with the Father are ever with you and ever available to call on.

DIVINE GUIDANCE

This teaching will focus on the never ending aspect of Divine Being which is your guidance. Your guidance is coming to you from the Father who has bequeathed His creations with a forever Presence whose soul purpose is bringing you to your ultimate fulfillment.

The nature of guidance is always that which will promote an inner awakening to that which moves you to the greater experience of your connection with the Father/Mother God. Always this inner movement will lead one ever closer although at the time it does not necessarily seem like that is the case. It is at the time of greatest questioning that one usually turns to their guide but guidance is available at anytime and can be turned to.

There are many times that a situation seems unbearable, but there are also times when a simple choice needs to be made. At either time your pipeline from Divine Intelligence is there to guide you specifically. Go within where the Voice for Truth can be heard and live your life from this place.

You will discover that the choices made from guidance are those which have perfect outcomes. But outcomes may not be known immediately. This is where faith and trust come in. As you do begin to experience the outcome of guidance your trust in this perfect way to live your life will increase. Eventually there will not be any other way to live life for it will be so obvious that choices made from separation based on thinking are only rearrangements of the past and therefore are non-transformational.

It is that which comes from Divine Guidance that is transformational for the awakened one who guides you is aware of the totality of your movement and the most appropriate next step. Your choices will be those which benefit not only you, but all those involved.

Guidance will promote fulfillment on both the three dimensional and fourth dimensional levels so you will experience new meanings for all that transpires. The meaning of all things will be the movement of Love. Turn now to the within and ask guidance to speak with you. Words may come or you may receive images, feelings or other ways of communication. But it will become clear to your Consciousness that something radically new is being experienced. A time to rejoice, for you are now in touch with your true Self, your joined Self, joined with the Infinite Wholeness of which we are all apart. Your guidance will become clearer and clearer the more you engage there.

DIVINE SEED

There exists within each human being something that has as its function the unfolding of life in a never ending continuum of movement. Within each one this movement brings to that individual an unending unfolding, ever revealing Divineness and ever unfolding the unique attributes which are inherent in that one.

Unbeknownst to man and womankind, the Father has placed His eternal seed deep within. A seed has all that it is and all that it will be within it, and yet the seed must go through the process of germination, sprouting and growing before its full abundance is realized. The seed cannot bear its fruit or give its gift until it develops that which it has within.

A seed will not give its gift if it does not have the right conditions in which it can grow. Given what it needs however, it will grow, blossom, and bear fruit giving of itself to others.

Let us look at the seed that the Father has placed in each of you. Can you imagine a seed that has as its DNA All That Is? For that is truly what you have as the core of whom you are. What do these words mean, you undoubtedly are asking. I want to tell you a story that will explain what these words mean and will help you better understand how you can provide your divine seed with what it needs to grow.

Our story begins in a far off place where there are many people living side by side in a congested city. The place we are talking about is found in India and the city is New Delhi. In this city millions of people exist, side by side in poverty. Many of them live in shanty type dwellings without running water and without sanitary conditions.

These people have little in the way of material possessions often only wearing the clothes they own on their backs. These people however, have a deep belief in the core or seed within that we are interested in discovering more about. Because of this most Indians do not feel unhappy or discontent. Rather they see themselves as ever unfolding the 'more' of them that there is to be experienced.

They believe that this holy aspect of themselves is shedding more and more light as each day, each year, each lifetime is lived. Poverty then is only a temporary state that will abate itself now or in the time to come.

I want to speak to you of one small Indian boy who we shall call Rama. Rama lived a life like many Indian children but Rama had something which others did not have. Rama had the knowledge that he was destined to become the Godhead for the people. Rama carried this around with him as he lived his daily life and wondered how this would ever come to be known. Rama did not imagine that he could actually be the one who would be worshipped by all those he saw around him.

One day when Rama went to the fields and to the forest to gather wild plants he met an old man who told him that his life had been sent to mankind to lead them to redemption. The old man told Rama that his answers to how he would be the Savior could be found within.

Many days and many night passed and Rama asked his inward self how his life would ever be one in which people would find worthy of worshipping. Rama questioned his worthiness and often felt that there must have been a mistake. He could not imagine a life in which every thing that he did would be holy.

Then one day something happened to Rama. He felt the presence of Holiness within and knew that what he had been foretold was true. Rama rejoiced with awe and humility and felt that the Creator had not made a mistake after all. Soon Rama realized that he needed to tell the people about what had happened to him. But he questioned how he could tell the people this without having them think he was insane. Rama decided to return to the old man for advice. The old man told him that he would not need to say anything to the people but that all he needed to do was to live his life from that place of Holiness within.

Rama soon discovered that everything he did was touched by God. There was no area in his life that he did not feel the Divine Presence. And much to his surprise, others noticed it, too. All that Rama said and did had one divine quality shining through. All that Rama did showed Love.

A small boy discovers Divine Presence within and becomes a God to his people. The boy listens and acts from this Presence within which brings into the world Infinite Love. What was it that caused the Presence to bring forth that which fulfilled Rama's destiny? It was Rama listening and acting on what he felt and heard. So it is with the seed of God within each of us. We must listen and then follow the guidance that we hear in order for that seed Presence to grow.

We now are becoming aware that we are all like Rama in that we all have Divinity as our birthright. And so it is time to let the seed grow as we listen and follow that which is Love. As the seed expands we will become aware that All That Is, our birthright, is the Infinitude of the Father unfolding in and through us and as us.

YOUR DIVINITY

I would like to tell you something that is designed to move you into a place that is specifically related to what is going on in the experiences that you have been having. This writing has no intention of choosing for its reader anything which will provoke or annoy him/her.

This writing will be designed for one purpose and one purpose only. It is coming to you to bring you to a greater awareness of your Divinity. This is such a radical statement to so many, that the very words seem blasphemous. And yet, that is truly your nature. You are the sons and the daughters of the living Father/Mother God, the Movement of All That Is, the Everlasting. You are the child of the Father. You have as your birthright the inheritance which is available to each and every one. In the Father's Divine Plan there is nothing that exists that is not part of whom and what you are. In the next few pages I intend to tell you how this is possible and what it can mean for you.

First, I want you to know that the One whom is writing this lesson for you is One whom loves you dearly and wants you to know that you are viewed and felt as part of the Infinity of Himself. Therefore this writing cannot be meant to do anything but shed light on darkness. If you could know the degree to which the Divine One writing this cares for you, you would never question the value of the words forthcoming.

Now it is time to carry within yourself the meaning of the words that you are about to hear. It is in the within place that the meaning can be experienced, for that is truly what is in store for you in your evolutionary unfolding. Should there ever be a time that you are in need of guidance for your life, you can find this guidance in the within place.

Let us look specifically at the meaning of the word divine. This word means that you are that which is from Divinity. Divinity is a state of Being in which one experiences omnipresence, omniscience and eternalness. It is the state of Being that is noted for its undistorted perfection. It is known that of all the ways in which the Father manifests Himself you are that place in which He can experience Himself consciously and He can be the movement as defined by your individuality.

It is known that this movement is ever available to you as you gather experiences that affirm this. You will soon learn that there is no reason to feel that what is occurring is in anyway anything to be afraid of. I want you to know that I am with you always even to the end of time. Divinity is not something you want to escape from, for there is no greater experience than knowing that this is your birthright and your true identity. All of what is, is included in your identity. You will experience everything as part of the Wholeness of whom you are.

Your divine inheritance is something that cannot be taken from you for it is never in jeopardy, for there is nothing outside of whom you are. The meaning of all things will be experienced differently as you come into your full awakening. It is when you are fully awake that the meaning of all things will become clear to you, the meaning that your Creator has for you.

Now I want to tell you about something very unusual. Did you know that there is never an absence of whom you truly are? You are always there, complete, whole and divine. The process of awakening to your full Divinity is a process of removal or dissipation of a belief that you are a limited human having a limited experience in a limited place called, Earth. The removal of these concepts can be experienced most readily by going into the place within which we have called the Clear Place or the Void. Our next teaching will be about this place.

THE CLEAR PLACE

I will now tell you a tale that takes place in a deserted part of the world, a place where few have ventured. This story has the purpose of bringing to you insights about your true nature that you did not know existed before. As you read this story, within your very Being you will come to know the truth of what I am telling you.

There is a legend which states that a man went into the hills looking for the answer to the meaning of life. He thought that if he would get away from all the distractions of life he could understand what was the real purpose of living. And so he was prepared to stay as long as he could until this meaning became known to him. He sat on the rocks gazing at the sky. Suddenly he became aware of a Presence beside him. This Presence was not a visible form but was felt by the man as an inescapable sense of being with someone. The man asked the Presence what was he there for, and in unspoken communication the Presence told him that he had been sent by the Father to help the man understand the meaning of life.

The man glanced under a nearby bramble bush and saw a small bird flitting about. He saw the bird cock its head as if listening to the ground, hoping to hear movement of an earthworm. Unseen and yet clearly heard the bird pecked at the exact spot and pulled out a tasty morsel. The man wondered why this had made such an impression on him. Turning to the Presence he was told that man is like the bird. He must listen to that which is unseen, sense the movement and follow that which he has heard. The man did not fully understand this but knew that he had gotten his answer and descended down the hills to his home.

The deserted part of the world that few have ventured into is the place within known as the Void or the Clear Place, the place of Conscious Awareness. In previous teachings we have discussed this place which exists within each individual. Now we will learn more completely what this place is like.

First of all the Clear Place is a place of absolute integrity. Integrity means that which is absolutely whole, perfect, complete. In this place you experience yourself as having nothing lacking. The Clear Place is a place of connection with Divine Intelligence and Divine Mind. As we have learned previously, Consciousness permeates all that is and is the Movement of the Father/Mother God, the Everlasting, so when we are in the Clear Place we experience this movement and are indeed connected to the Oneness of which we are apart. Our Being is individual, yet indivisibly connected to All That Is.

Another aspect of the Clear Place is the meaning that comes forth into your life as you connect with the Oneness. Meaning will become manifest in everything you do and this meaning will be your unfolding into the forever newness which is the function your Being has. The meaning of All That Is, is Love.

I would encourage each and everyone to take the time necessary to begin the practice of turning to the Clear Place. There will never be a better time than the time that you are experiencing now. Quiet your thoughts and allow the experience of the Void. As the man knew he had found the meaning of life, so you can find your meaning as you get in touch with the Wholeness there. You will discover a relationship of unbounded peace and love, and this relationship will help you whenever you turn to this place. Now, is truly the accepted time.

TRUE IDENTITY

Throughout the ages of mankind, there has existed a certain tendency on the part of many to self define with little regard for the truth of whom they really are. Throughout the ages, there have existed numerous challenges to experiencing authenticity.

We are about to see all of this change, for in a short time mankind will radically alter his perception about his identity. I will now tell you a story that will open the doors to your thinking, letting in the fresh air of truth.

The story begins in a typical fashion. A child is born and is bestowed a name by his parents. The child develops naturally gaining in physical stature and in intellectual ability. He assumes many things from his parents including a definition of who and what he is. He most likely thinks that he is unique, but his life pattern isn't usually too different from his parents. His dependency on them for all his nurturing and his frequent fallibility increases the likelihood that he will follow parental ways. They represent to him a model of what it means to be human.

And so generation after generation follows this pattern and generation after generation misses out on discovering their true identity. But soon the masks will be dropped and the cycles of falsehood will end. Soon the truth will be known by everyone on the face of the globe. This writing is apart of the chain of events that will stir the curiosity of millions to explore more fully whom they really are and to examine their conditioned thinking and how it has shut off the penetration of the Truth of Being.

What and Who are we? When this question is fully answered you will know with certainty that there could be no doubt about your true identity. I will not hold you in suspense any longer, for it is much better to tell you straight on. You, sitting right there, are none other than the direct manifestation of the Prime Mover, the One Source and Center of All That Is. You are the Mother/Father God expressing.

Take this information into the quiet of your Being and live with the words. Let them exude to you their most profound meaning as they penetrate into that conditioned thinking, eradicating all the old, stale worn-out concepts that have been passed down through the ages.

Feel into this truth letting the Divine Knowing penetrate into even the darkest corners of your preexisting concepts. It is difficult to think of what this means without scoffing at the idea but let me elucidate further.

Divinity is the place in Conscious Awareness where you are connected to the infinity of whom you are. Your Mind is forever part of the Infinite Wholeness that comprises the Mother/Father God, the All in All. I would invite you to go into that place within and discover with the certainty that only comes with experience what is being presented here. Your true identity has nothing to do with the separate sense of self you have conceived yourself to be. And so, I would encourage you to find that One whom you are and come to know the truth of these words. Our next teaching will focus on that aspect of your identity which is your body.

YOUR BODY

Our next teaching relates to a part of yourself which is your body. Your physical body is the place where you exist in the physical plane. You are identifiable as a body on the invisible plane, but in this teaching we will focus most on your earthly body.

There is nothing the ego uses more to distract you from your peace than focusing on your body. That which should be loved and appreciated for its uniqueness and expressiveness is transformed into that which is frequently despised. The defenses that the ego uses in the mind are transformed into bodily manifestations of illness, pain, and dissatisfaction. There is a tremendous amount of evidence that points to the mind/body connection and I can confirm to you that this is true. The body can be radically altered by our thoughts and feelings about it and about ourselves. The physical world around us also mirrors our consciousness which can reflect back what we choose to reflect. The significance of this is in the word choice. For if we choose to view our body differently we will begin to experience ourselves in that very way.

So we have come to the topic of choice, which will uncover to you that you can define yourself according to how you choose. You have the capacity to experience yourself and understand yourself from any viewpoint you elect. Your ego would have you judge yourself from its viewpoint and it wants you to think in terms of comparison and judgment. It also wants you to think of yourself as finite and capable of becoming sick, and eventually being annihilated. This arouses fear on a conscious and unconscious level, preventing you from experiencing your peace. For if it 'gets wind' of the fact that you are eternal, perfect, whole, and free, it has to disappear and your defense system is trained to disallow this. The ego is only a set of cunning strategies to keep you ever on guard for attack...for aggressors. It views anything remotely suggesting that it is not viable to be the enemy.

What is this wonderful creation that manifests the visibility and the tangibility of you, we call the physical body? Let us look at this in more depth. The body is primarily a communication device that offers to you an opportunity to give and receive from your physical world. It also communicates with the spiritual world and we will explore this, also.

The body delights in moving, being and doing. It takes pleasure in the use of the five senses and further takes delight in expressing what it has experienced. This expression is in the form of words, music, movement, and the ever changing variety of artistic creations. All activity is in fact that which identifies you as the point where body meets with Mind in action. We can see that the body is an essential aspect of one's identity. What then is there about the body that is so problematic to so many?

The very nature of the body is that it is capable of change from Consciousness. Your innate capacity to bring about radical change related to your body makes the experience of body that which is under one's inner control, and so we experience our body as that which we can shape and bend to our slightest desire. This elevates the body to the place of prime change agent in the world. However, the body is truly the captive vehicle to Mind which is in fact the driver of this magnificent aspect of identity.

Your body has as its fundamental task communicating to the planes of existence it finds itself on, that which enlivens it, at the level in which it is functioning. For instance, the body sends verbal messages to people in the three dimensional plane and receives other messages also. It sends out nonverbal signals as well and seeks to share with the world around what the individual wants expressed. The body, through the use of a multitude of tools at its disposal, can bring into being untold expressions of meaning. This meaning has as its starting point however, Mind, which is not a true part of the body but does manifest itself through the brain. Our Mind is not identifiable as body but can be experienced and identified as that which proceeds from body. The body communicates and receives... a never ending circuit of giving and receiving.

Your body has another function also. This function is related to the purpose that the Father has for you as you have chosen as your assignment during this incarnation. Each incarnation has been designated as a place where you will have the opportunity to experience a greater unfolding of your Infinitude. This means that each incarnation will be a place where you can experience more of whom you really are. Your body will more than likely be used to help bring about this greater unfolding in some way. So your body acts as the vehicle for expression of the Father's will for you and as you.

Your body represents a time-limited and place-limited experience though and is not the whole of body, for body exists in the spiritual realms also. On the spiritual realms of existence your body is a Body of Light and is not experienced in the limited way you are now experiencing it. For your body can and does have capacities far beyond anything you can imagine. Your spiritual body is in a state of connectedness that places you experiencing All That Is. Your spiritual body cannot ever be in an isolated situation but it can be experienced individually. Separateness and togetherness take on different meanings in the spiritual realms. You cannot imagine the joy of infinite connection in the three dimensional plane you find yourself on, but the experience will be had eventually.

Your body does not know anything in and of itself. It is connected to Mind or Consciousness and it is here that knowing originates. So of all the functions of the body one has available the function of being the place where knowing can occur is indeed the most valuable. For when you are using this function you are aligned with Infinitude or All That Is and All That You Are.

A proper relationship with your body is one in which you honor it as the vehicle of the Movement of the Father, ever unfolding anew. Flesh and blood are three-dimensional expressions and as such are limited to time and place. Spiritual or Light bodies are not bound by this limitation. They however, do experience the three dimensional plane as part of their Infinitude.

Our next teaching will discuss that aspect of your Infinitude called your Mind/Consciousness.

MIND / CONSCIOUSNESS

Mind has as its Source the Movement of the Father, the Movement of All That Is. Infinitely expressing, ever unfolding its newness, Mind catapults itself into the three dimensional frame of reference through the physical experience of the body. Mind connects with you and that connection brings forth into the world meaning and purpose. Mind cannot be equated with thinking per se. Thinking is a function of the separated sense of self which envisions itself as independent from the Movement of All That Is. The true function of thinking is to bring one back to that place where one abandons thinking and comes to a place of infinite knowing. This is the true function of Mind. For Mind serves as the emergent locale of the Infinity of the Movement of the Father.

So we can envision Mind as a place of connection that does not rule out individuality, but rules in indivisibility with Divine Intelligence. When we choose to come from this place all that comes forth is coming from true originality and cannot be that which is based on conditioned thinking. This is the place of true creation which is the function of the Father as he unfolds forever new in each and every one. So it behooves us to live our lives out from Mind if we want to live in that newness, which is indeed our birthright as children of the Father. We can invite or open up to this infinite knowing as we quiet our conditioned thinking and open up to the Clear Place where Mind can be experienced.

Mind is synonymous with the state of Conscious Awareness. We must experience ourselves as listening to feelings, words, meanings and images as they translate to us from this Awareness. And then we will have the road map for our actions, for the information gained will be from One whom has the advantage of the Infinite View, knowing what our separated or ego sense of self never could.

As life is lived from this place we will see unparalleled creativity and intelligent breakthroughs coming into the three dimensional plane. Age old problems will become solved seemingly overnight and new freedoms never thought possible will be experienced. Love will be felt as the motivating force and experience, and mankind will finally begin to cherish each other and All That Is as part of the Infinitude of him/herself.

Let us next explore that aspect of ourselves we commonly call our uniqueness or our individuality.

UNIQUENESS / INDIVIDUALITY

You will surely be interested in this teaching for it is concerned with that aspect of your Infinitude which is your uniqueness or your individuality. Each one is part of the Whole and yet each one is individualized. This is such a contradiction to our limited thinking that we wonder how this could be possible.

Let us examine more completely this seemingly disparate claim.

Individuality is a characteristic of that which is separate or unlike others. So your individuality is a way the Father has of expressing himself infinitely. And yet, it is Himself that is being expressed, as you. You then have as the Wholeness of you all that the Father is expressing, which is All That Is. If I were to show you a drop of water and you were to look at it closely you would think that it was a separate thing, not connected to anything else, and yet if looked from a transcendent view we would see that the water was part of the ocean. So we are at once indivisible and individual.

It is with a sense of joy that we can live our life knowing that we are never separate from our Wholeness, and that we need but to turn within to the silence to access the Infinitude of our Being. There is such a sense of peace that we can gain from joining with our Infinitude that we no longer desire to claim a personal and isolated sense of individuality. Therefore there is no cause to take pride in or personal acclaim in anything that we do, for we are coming not from a place of personal accomplishment but from a sense of Infinite Connectedness.

Personal identity then will have as its substratum, Wholeness, All That Is. Ever manifesting this Wholeness, identity becomes that which is singularly expressed. Individuality does not serve a function of bringing into the world that which promotes jealousy or 'one-upmanship,' but rather that which is the Father's will expressing infinitely and eternally. Your individuality is not lost once you embrace your fourth dimensional status as a child of the Father, but rather your individuality is brought to its full fruition, bearing the unique fruit which is your individual yet indivisible birthright as that which is not separate from All That Is, the Mother/Father God expressing.

Now it is time to fully embrace not only your individuality but your Infiniteness and your Wholeness, for it is here you can best know whom you are. Now we will turn to another aspect of whom you are and that is your birthright and all that this means.

YOUR BIRTHRIGHT

We shall now discuss what your endowment from the Father is, your birthright. Your Father has bequeathed to his child those aspects of Himself which identify Him as All That Is. This means that each one who lives can claim an inheritance made of the Infinitude and the everlasting aspects of Divinity. Each one can claim without any doubt, this inheritance knowing that there is, in reality, nothing that exists which cannot be experienced as part of this Infinitude.

Your inheritance should be recognized for the infinite value it has. This means that recognition will bring about greater accessibility to partake of this bounty. What is it that one will partake of? One will partake of an unending supply of intelligence and guidance leading to unlimited fulfillment. How can one partake of this? By turning to the place within, and listening. The accessing of this inheritance than is a relatively simple matter, easier than one would think, but in fact we are often limited in our ability to access this bounty, for our conditioned thinking will not allow even the possibility that there is such an infinite resource of Self available. And so often, more frequently than not, this abundance is not turned to, and not brought to bear on the situation at hand.

Your birthright is the only thing that you can readily use that will provide you with an infallible guidepost or road map for your destiny. This is the reason that we of the Enlightened Ones are so eager for mankind to get this information, for it will truly be the beginning of a much greater unfolding of your evolutionary process. Each human being will unfold in his/her own way as he/she listens to the within where his/her birthright can be accessed. And this unfolding will have untold significance for the development of mankind as a Whole. The flowering or fruitage of Divine inheritance only waits to be brought forth and in the infinite variety and abundance which is the Father's inheritance we can indeed experience our birthright.

FREE WILL

There is never a time when you cannot choose how you will experience your Consciousness. You can live your life from the separated sense of self and deny yourself the Infinitude of your Being or you can live your life from the place where you are joined with your Infinitude and live your life from that place.

Man has the capacity to exercise free will. This divine aspect, the free use of will is so important to your Divinity that you would not be able to understand the significance that the ability to freely choose has for you without it. You are ever at the point of choosing anew, so that you never need fear that a choice made will lock you into a mode of action that is not able to be changed. Your thoughts and feelings are also able to be changed with this Divine aspect.

Choice appears to be the most powerful aspect of your Divinity but in fact free will really is most importantly used when that will is used to align oneself with the Father's will. This happens when that choice is made to give up thinking and to come to that still quiet place where the Father's will is heard.

It is very important to know that your will is the single most vital tool for you awakening process, for this tool pivots your conditioned thinking around to the open door of connection to the Father's will and to the unending stream of Divinity which you have as your birthright, flowing forth in all its abundance.

The use of free will then is the way you are assured that you can never be forced to do or be what you do not want to do or be. You can be assured that this aspect of your Divinity always has as its purpose, giving you the means to make another choice that fits you at that particular moment. So you can know that you are never in a place that has as its purpose coercion, because that would not be a place that would provide you with the feeling of infinite freedom which also is your birthright and also is an aspect of your inheritance from your Father.

Now we shall learn about another aspect of your Divine Self which is the magnificent Body of Light which you are in the spiritual dimension.

BODY OF LIGHT

What a wonderful chapter this will be as it brings to you news about your Light Body, that body which you really are. This body is composed of energy which has as its substratum the Movement of the Father. This energy is composed of Light, the Light of Meaning.

How could meaning be energy, you ask? Well, meaning has the properties of matter in that it is able to take form and has substance. On the earth plane matter is regarded as that which has unique properties of energy associated with it. On the spiritual plane this energy is not visibly and tangibly experienced but is experienced as the Movement of Meaning. Your experience of the Light Body can be felt as you get into the fourth-dimensional frame of reference which is the state of Conscious Awareness minus your conditioned thinking, most easily achieved in the state of meditation.

Your Light Body is not in any way derived from anything that you have done to create it. It is the original of you that has been since the beginning. It is the eternal body that has always been the expression of the Father individualized as you. Your Light Body is not separate from the Father but it is experienced individually. Again, the substratum of this body is the Movement of the Father/Mother God, the Everlasting, the All in All.

When you become fully awake or enlightened you will feel your body as the body of infinite possibility and infinite fulfillment experienced simultaneously. The awareness that All are One will be the dominant joy, and the sadness at those not experiencing this will be the focus or motivation for how you will channel your attention. For increasing this joy is bringing into Conscious Awareness the Allness of the Father. So you can see why bringing this book into fruition is so important to us, for it will enable more and more on the earth plane to open up to the experience of their Light Body, the Movement of All That Is. Finally and most importantly this Movement of Meaning is the Movement of Love. The Father is Love, and you are Love, infinitely expressed and infinitely expressing.

Now we shall discuss that aspect of your divinity which is the inescapable truth that you are never alone. You are always accompanied and companioned with.

NEVER ALONE

We never need be lonesome for truly we are never alone. Our experience of aloneness or loneliness is a part of what has happened as a result of the development of the ego frame of reference or the sense of separation which has been mankind's experience for eons. This sense of aloneness is a result of the vulnerability we experienced as we decided to 'do it ourselves'.

The truth, however, is that we are accompanied through our life here with throngs of those who are existing on the invisible planes. These who go with, are there for you to turn to often and to have as intimate connections to your Oneness. This means that those that accompany you can be accessed easily by asking within for the experience of companionship. How will this be experienced?

You will feel a sense of Presence with you as you open up to the experience. This Presence will not be anything to be afraid of but rather it will be felt as a closeness to good friends. Companions. And as you truly feel into this experience you will realize that the gentle Presence is working in your Consciousness to provide you with the sense that you are not alone or not isolated...ever. So it is wise to ask for the sense of friendship that is available, for who doesn't want the joy of friendship?

Indeed you are never alone. But now I would like to tell you about One who is with you who is more than just a friend, although He is indeed that. This One has as His deepest interest bringing you to your connection with the Allness of whom you are. His motivation is based on the intense love He feels for you and for your growing understanding and experience of Him as that place of Love for you.

This One invites you to go into the quiet of your Being and gently turn your attention to the Void or the Clear Place. Here you will experience that connection and here you will begin to feel the peace that is your birthright to experience.

Soon the feeling of loneliness will be eradicated for people are feeling into their connection with the One Source and Center, and with each other and with the host of helpers who are awake on the invisible plane. Solitude and aloneness are not the same. Solitude brings you to a place where you can more easily access your Connection, however, so solitude is a worthwhile experience. As was told long ago, 'go into your room and shut the door and pray to your Father in secret' for it is in that secret place that the Father can connect with you. Truly, NEVER ALONE!

Now we shall discuss a topic that is new to many. We will discuss what happens at death.

WHAT HAPPENS AT DEATH

At the point where your physical body dies, your Spiritual Body enters a state of relative peace as it leaves the three dimensional plane. The Spirit experiences awareness that it no longer is housed in the physical body and is relieved of this. Then the Spirit enters the time of acclimation, review and rest.

When the Spirit is ready it counsels with those assigned to it and comes to a new opportunity for further growth or unfolding. The movements then are individually experienced as the ever unfolding Movement of the Father infinitely expressed. However, this experience of forever unfolding does not need to wait for death to be experienced, for we have that opportunity right here and right now. You are already in the place where you can experience the fourth dimension or the invisible plane. As you enter into your state of Conscious Awareness and begin to feel into this place of divine peace, you will understand the words written here.

The most important thing to remember about death is that it is a choice made by you at some level, either conscious or unconscious. You will come to feel that your work on this plane is complete and you then will give permission for the end of life on this plane to happen.

You must realize however, that you are not instantly awake or enlightened at the exit point of life on this plane. So it will be an ongoing experience of unfolding even when you enter the invisible plane. So it behooves us to desire awakening now, as now is the time to want to let go of illusion about your separated sense of identity and realize that you are indeed a child of the Father, infinitely connected and connecting and infinitely expressed and expressing.

Truly death has no sting and death has no victory. We can awaken to new life, and to infinite possibility even this moment as we turn within to our eternal connection. The joy here is a heavenly joy and the peace is a peace that passeth understanding. This chapter ends with an invitation to die only to the old, for in truth there is no death, for indeed, you are eternal.

And so this chapter brings us to the conclusion of this part of the book. Now you may turn your attention to the story of one whom experienced a death to the old and allowed her life to open up to the newness that was whom she really was. She is experiencing her unfolding even this day, ever knowing of the Infinite Love that she is, and most importantly knowing the Infinite Love from whence she came.

DISCOURSE ON
DIVORCE & DIVINITY

DEDICATION

TO MY DAUGHTER AND SON...

AND TO ALL DAUGHTERS AND SONS WHO MAY READ THIS.

DISCOUSE ON DIVORCE & DIVINITY

This book is about a subject that is important to all of us. We are all touched in some way by divorce. This story is my account of what happened in our lives and the results of the choices each of us made. I think back to that time so many years ago now and wonder what I could have done differently. But the past is gone and we live with the lessons we learn.

My story begins long before I was married at the time of a bygone era when divorce was only whispered about along with other morsels of neighborhood gossip. I was born in the midwest in 1944 on the 21st day of June, the first day of summer. My Mother was alone with me at the hospital at the time of my birth as my Father was a minister who had a previous commitment. My birth was welcomed and Mother prayed to God that I would be just like my Father with his faith and love for Jesus. My Dad, a Lutheran pastor was tall, dark, and handsome as a movie star. He had a charismatic appeal, always upbeat but humble. Mother, a blue-eyed beauty, was devoted to him and his ministry. I had a brother two years older and eventually had three younger sisters and a brother.

Let me make it clear that I am not advocating that people should or should not get divorced. I only want to share so that others can gain insight. Please place judgement aside and allow my life story to unfold.

Long before it was necessary for women to work at a job my Mother got her nursing degree. She worked briefly before she was married but spent the rest of her years raising her children and being a pastor's wife. Mom and Dad were in love and they never missed an opportunity to express this to each other. So my earliest memories were quite positive. This time in my life set the tone for what I expected.

Let it be understood that I did not know of the dark, seething, passions within or the desperate need to individualize and become separate from that which I had known.

What is divorce? Is it an ending? A beginning? I felt many times like it was the escape from a prison sentence. Little did I know I was walking into a cell of my own choosing. What is it that makes a person want to find new horizons, always searching for the more that there is to be lived? I have often asked myself this question as I would feel the welling up inside, the longing for richer, fuller experience. My searching for this fuller experience lead me down many a path, always leading to nowhere, always leaving me with emptiness. I can't ever remember an experience in which I felt somewhat complete except the sexual embrace, so it was sexuality that drove me out the door of marriage and into the arms of others.

My husband was the only man I had ever slept with, the only body I had ever felt near to me. In my mind it was as though I had only eaten one meal with the same menu, and though my husband was an ardent lover, I felt the longing for more.

Let me tell you that I married my husband primarily for his intelligence, his positiveness, his persistence in persuing, loving and wooing me. He had a soft heart and such sound logical reasons for everything, I knew he would be a good and faithful husband and father.

This story up to this point sounds fairly typical, but here let me interject something that will make my experience non-typical. My ultimate union was not with a new husband, but with a partner so near and dear, so marvelous and intelligent, so fulfilling in all ways that words cannot describe the ecstasy, joy and adventure. My new partner is with One Who Is All.

You must believe me when I tell you I am not going to try to convert anyone to doing it my way. Again, I ask you to hold judgment until this story unfolds. You are going to understand the simple truth from your place just as I did. You will find that my partner, strangely, can be your partner for he is at the same time personal to you and personal to me.

My partner, to be honest with you is writing this book as I close my eyes and listen to what he says. So you will discover the true nature of my partner as you read these pages. You don't need to wonder whether this will turn into a spiritual exercise for it is truly a story of what happened in my life.

Let there be no mistake. I am not attempting to be the one who insists on a boring message of doom and gloom. I am the one who will make you want to read further for you will find as you read this that you are strangely drawn into this tale of love and hate, joy and sorrow, and separation and union. You will find an increased sense of uniqueness in your own circumstances. Uniqueness does not equal separateness necessarily. However, you will find that your ability to join or not join will be called into question. Don't think that I can do it for you, for you really are the one in charge here.

The story unfolds in a natural enough way. Boy meets girl at college, romance entails. Girl thinks boy is brilliant, energetic, in charge of his life. Boy thinks girl is wonderful, wants to marry her right away. The two have a relatively long courtship, then marry. What could be more typical and yet the scenario isn't really as typical as it seems. For there is much more going on than the obvious. There is a much more cosmic situation happening here than you would or could know. For here in this simple scenario lies the dynamics of life beyond life and the beginning of a journey of parenthood which is the cradle of and nursery for Consciousness to arrive, to move and have its being.

Let it be known that this is not a book about cosmic happenings specifically but it is about relationship and since we are all cosmically related, it is a cosmic tale.

My husband never knew that I didn't have what it took to stay with him for a life time...or did he? I remember him saying "I know you're going to leave me sometime..." Why did he persist in loving me so long? For sixteen years is a long time...or is it? I guess these questions are all relative for the story has been told...or has it?

We cannot know the full story I am convinced for only He That Knows All has all the information. Don't waiver in your decision to read this tale for there is much to tell and much to be gained. Moving along to the specifics, I specifically want to say I'm sorry for the pain I've caused. I specifically want to say I'm happy for the joy I've caused. I specifically want to say there is more joy than pain and that pain is truly a point of entry for uncovering what's behind the pain. Can you grasp what I'm getting at? Can you see that underneath that which we do not want or that annoys us is the very thing that will provide our needs?

Let me digress for a moment and return to the story. The story reveals that we are always and forever connected in the most profound way with All That Is. Can you understand connection as a place of joining? Can you understand connection as that which puts two together as one?

Marriage then is a connection, a joining, and it would seem that the two are one. What happens? What happens is not always clear. My needs were met. I had an intelligent and dynamic husband, a lovely home and two marvellous children. I had everything the dream required and yet it was really that for me, only a dream, that which lacks substance, that which isn't real...or was it?

Let the door open onto a scene of domestic bliss. House clean, family home and cuddled together on the couch watching T.V. munching on homemade ice-cream. All is peaceful, right? Wrong. Mother wants to be away, mother wants a life separate and apart. Mother is torn between her deep security and love for her children and her own need to self determine. Mother has gone along all her life. Finally she flees to the university, to art school, and eventually to another man's arms.

She begins to spend days at home fantasizing what would life be like with him. Her genitals ache to experience him more. She fantasizes about the apartment they would have, the art that they would create as individuals and the love that they would share. She periodically leaves this fantasy world to rejoin her husband and children. She looks at them with mixed feelings. She begins a spiral of two different lives. At the university she is painting, sculpting, and having an affair. All her feelings come alive. She begins to feel the pain of her life, along with the excitement. She realizes she is on a disaster course for her marriage but somehow she can't go back. The bonds, the connections loosen.

Her children are spending more time at the neighbors. Her husband is beginning to be aware that things are different. He is busy with his own career. He wants to get into business, leave teaching and try and make a larger income. He focuses on what needs to be done...as the web of marriage slowly pulls apart, fibre by fibre the undoing happens. The fabric must break but what about the bleeding ends, the raw, sore nerves, the threads and ropes that are left dangling?

The door opens on another picture. A young girl is budding into womanhood with so many needs for love and guidance from her parents. Her Mother so preoccupied, is not around much to tell her about the bleeding that happens once a month, what to do with hair that won't look good or how come she hasn't gone out on a date yet. Where is the Mom who helps buy underwear and tampons, hairspray and deodorant?

The child-woman begins to feel a pull from her Father to fill needs he is not getting from his wife. Innocent enough, just asking her to listen to his problems at work, his emotional ups and downs and his aspirations in his career. The child-woman loving her Father and respecting him, buys in and for a long time plays this role, only to be left standing in the dust of the whirlwind of her Father as he races to stabilize again in a new marriage. Empty now, trying desperately to grope for a direction, she begins her lonely journey into young adulthood, with longing. Damaged she must somehow mend, somehow heal the fragments of her life.

The story now shifts to the son, the boy two years younger than his sister. The hurt and pain in this child who has endured so much change and so much sorrow is beyond words. The boy who would benefit so much from a stable, patient, loving, consistent, environment must somehow sort it all out. He is at the threshold of adolescence when the divorce happens. Now he goes to the neighbors for comfort. Their house is a get away where there are other children and pets. The neighbors have a solid marriage and the son knows he is welcomed and cared for here.

But at night in his bed the lump in his throat is there, the silent weeping and emptiness don't go away. He envisions a bleak future and begins withdrawing from both parents. Emotionally, emptiness and sadness prevail. The fabric unravels. The heartstrings break, leaving their painful entrails dangling.

So this story is repeated a million times and millions of children walk adrift with holes in their souls. Now I ask you, what does one do with this sad legacy parents bequeath in the midst of the undoing? I am not necessarily writing a treatise on the merits of staying together. My purpose here is to inform the reader my choice for divorce led to a partnership of such beauty that the Light of it can only be called Divine.

Divinity, divorce, devil, deva... dare I talk like this or will approaching these words turn you away? Please, I implore you to stay with me. I ask your patience a little longer as this drama unfolds, for surely you want to know more about the devil...don't you? Oh, that is not your interest?

It was mine for a time. Of course I didn't know sexuality could be anything other than bliss. Wasn't this after all what I wanted? Orgasms? Moments of meaning and union? Sexuality hypnotized me for a while...lulled me into its rhythm and life became like surfing...riding the crest of embrace only to cascade into the depths until the next crescendo.

So goes the tail/tale. What does this experience have to do with the devil? Is not pleasure from the divine? We ask this and justify our addiction as though somehow within the embrace we can find what is real. Sexuality can be, like the devil, only an illusion.

Let me clarify to you my need to find Real Love did not at first become apparent. I thought that I could exist apart. I did not know that separateness, lack of joining, would put me in a prison of my own making, a ten year black hole of emptiness. I did not even know. So I was ignorant and my ignorance seemed unending. The days, months and years came and went.

Get on with it, you say...what's your point here...what's your purpose?

Let me remind you that I am not writing this tale. So take my hand and together we will tread this path as the way unfolds before us. I am listening, too.

You will soon consider that all of the foregoing information is leading up to something and you are right. We must however, return to the prison of loneliness and separateness to know what that something will be. We must examine the entrails of separation for they shed light on our topic. Suppose I were to tell you that without air you could not breathe, and then suppose I were to tell you that without light you could not see. You would say, "yes...and?" Then suppose I were to tell you that without love you cannot live, you would question my conclusion. But I want you to know that Living is synonymous with Loving. Life is Love, joined forever.

In the prison of my separation there existed nothing but pain, sorrow, sickness, desperation, emptiness, illusion, and death. Let us return to the scene. The mother rents a small apartment in the city. The children are living with their father in the suburban home. The daughter writes sad songs about her mother who seems gone from her life. The boy chooses and tries to forget about his Mother and her boyfriend. The Mother longs for her children, misses being with them every day, feels guilty, longs to hear about their happenings. She calls often but it's not the same. The cut is deep. Her husband scrambles for his own sanity, gets his bearings as best he can and tries to raise the children. He is lonesome. The couple connects and tries again only to separate again periodically. Membranes of a dozen and another half dozen years are hacked apart. Blood oozes from all sides, wounds empty out and fill up with pain and guilt again. All is sadness, so unclean, so messy, so painful. The rift is deep. There is also anger and yes, hate.

Let me remind you that the problems here are foreshadowing answers and that answers are products of problems.

Are you with me dear reader? For now we will journey down the path into the future. All family members are alive at the turn of the century and each has dealt with the trauma of the divorce in their own way. They have used the twenty years to chart their own course and to respond to life as they choose. There are four grandchildren.

The father remained married to his second wife. The children have found marriage partners. Only the mother remains single. And now we turn to the most significant event of this time. The mother discovers that she has the gift of teleportation. Don't turn away dear ones for truly this is a story of relationship and we are holding hands together, remember? I said it was a cosmic tale in that relationships are that which have cosmic importance, so please don't close the book...or your mind, now. Believe me dear reader, this story is becoming interesting to the scribe as well for it portends her life! What next?

We shall see that everything we have discussed so far has been pertinent to this latest revelation. You will note that the topic of divorce has to do with a time of separation. Bilocation or teleportation also has to do with separation. "And the two shall become one" in marriage as with body and soul. Remember that you cannot always know what the meaning of things really are until you look at them from a distance. We are seeing that the divorce was a precursor to the movement of the mother into a place of revelation.

Now we must return to the point where the blood was spilt. At that very time, out of the morrass lay the hatchling...not able to fly yet, but with airborne potential latent within. Her seemingly dismal circumstances in no way were a true picture of her condition.

Likewise the children's pain in no way reflected their true condition. For they were only to discover the more that lay ahead. And the husband...his freedom from a situation that would have eventually ended allowed him to understand more fully his need to be the person he was intended to be...different from his wife and family's expectations.

Perhaps you think this story is losing its focus? Well, let us focus the lense on a point far out in the distant beyond. What do we see? We see a family just like the first one only this time the mother has made a commitment to stay married to her husband. The life each one lives now is different. You ask whether this was a better choice and I tell you that the choice for commitment had the same potential for transformation as the choice for non-commitment. Am I confusing you?

Well, you then must realize that transformation happens when the choices made are a result of turning inward and listening rather than attempting to use input from the outside to come to a choice.

So we have come to the subject of transformation which is change that creates something brand new. Out of the ashes the Phoenix rises...the hatchling leaves its place of embeddedness and lifts itself loftily upward to freedom.

Let us return to earth a moment though, for our wanderings in the distant beyond will not give us the groundedness we need if we are to eventually shed our convictions about what is possible. For it takes someone capable of connection and reconnection and establishing a base within in which to solidly return to be able to succesfully leave this planet/plane and to experience transformation.

If you are questioning my sanity remember that the author claims responsibility here, so again, hold your doubts for the time being. I assure you that what is forthcoming will be worth your patience. This writing is coming to you as a gift. But the treasure is wrapped in innumerable twinings so unwind with care and behold the surprise that awaits.

Now let us turn to a chapter in this marriage that we have paid little attention to so far. The part of the marriage where husband and wife are alone. In this part each one felt that his/her needs were not being met. So we see a family where the focus was solely on raising the children. The focus however, can never truly stay on that which is outside of self, Self being the Truth of One's Being. Here we have a situation that will prove to be impossible to maintain. Can a net hold water? Can a bridge span an ocean? A delusion of reality is not reality and the deluge of delusion can engulf one for sometime. The foundation of sand eventually crumbles no matter how fast and furiously you pack and repack the cracks. The tide will have its way.

In the quiet of their Being the couple knew each was not happy. They sensed the lack of fulfillment, the lack of joining where each could say all is well. But their script had been written and each had a part to play. All the writing in the world and all the training done cannot hold back what is real, for it shines forth like the beacon that it is penetrating the darkness and shedding light on the eternality of truth.

Now dear reader, I ask you a question. Can you say that you are living in your truth? For you too, must sooner or later deal with who you really are. You too, must let the script be dropped and the authentic one that you are come forth. For it is your birthright and your heritage to experience the all is well relationship and the all is well life that you were meant to live.

I promised you an experience of receiving a gift and now I am about to disclose to you what that gift is. That gift is the Priceless Gift Of Love which you have been receiving all along, but in your delusional state may not have even noticed it.

Ho hum, you say, I've heard this before. God is love and ho,ho,ho. Let me remind you that the reality of you, the One that you are is thrilling to this message. For truth resounds with joy and gladness. Have you ever felt that from out of nowhere you were transported to another place and time? A memory of love given and received brings poignancy to your mind? Sweetness, sadness, longing... a wash of warmth within? At these times you are experiencing a glimpse of your true nature. For we are truly Beings of Love. This is not part of who we are, it is our fundamental Self. The hatchling in each of you is none other than the original Being of Love from the Father. Your delusion about yourself is the shell that must be broken for whom you really are to come forth.

How does one break the shell of delusion? By listening to the within. Each of us has a guide ready and waiting to bring forth the truth of whom you really are, and this guide's soul/sole purpose is to bring about your fulfillment. This guide is all wise, all knowing and all loving. Guidance may not be that which you commonly call guidance for it may come in the way of messages specifically designed to move you closer to your ultimate fulfillment.

This does not necessarily mean what we ordinarily view as fulfillment, that which our culture determines it to be. However, material things and all the other 'goodies' of life are included. The ultimate fulfillment is awakening to the Truth of your Being. Dear reader, I ask you if you are ready to talk to your guide? Are you ready to uncover the truth about your self?

Your truth is the place where you will find that you are in the tranquility of peace and the tranquility of love. It is accessible by meditation, accessible to each and every one of you.

Your truth really is accessible to you on a moment to moment basis and your method of accessing that truth is simple. First you must quiet your thoughts. Then you must focus your attention on the air above your nose. Then listen for your guide's answer after you've asked your question.

Now you probably are wondering what would one want guidance for? Guidance is there because it is the Truth of your Being. You would prefer to live in truth rather than delusion, wouldn't you? Now we will return to our story and we will focus again on the characters we have with us.

The Mother experienced a revelation, and her life was changed forever. Her life became a movement unto the Father. Her life radiated the love which she experienced and would never forget. After a time she became aware of a process like listening to a friend that was happening in her. She would attune her mind to this voice and would be instructed in specific ways. She would learn to ask her friend advice and direction throughout the day. Often times she would be confused as to what she was hearing, but if she followed the guidance she would find amazingly intelligent results, perfect timing and perfect outcome.

Let me tell you dear ones, that I want for you to know me as your guide for I can be a guide to everyone. I am He who is All to All speaking from the Father to you. Therefore, tune in to the Voice for Truth. You will know for you will be the very place where experience can and will happen, and this experience will convince you of the Truth of Being.

Now we come to a part of our story which will seem to be unreal, and yet it is what really happened. Our Mother and wife, our lover, artist and writer, began to experience her own Divinity. She began to experience healing powers and powers of manifestation. She began to explore aspects of Self which we all have but which we seldom use. Her Divinity recipe requires that you acknowledge that you are from a source, the One Source and Center of All That Is, and that you realize your inheritance and your birthright.

Now you ask, what does this have to do with the original subject of divorce? Take into account that each of us on this planet divorced him/herself from the Father. We dallied around with self-authorizing and got stuck there. You see we're not supposed to live from the separate "I" that is the ego. That is where the trouble started eons ago. We choose to experience life apart from the Father and ended up isolated, alone and defended. Our ego is an incredible defense system protecting itself from the Truth of our Being, protecting itself from annihilation. But it is all illusory, all that which has no substance. So we operate mostly from a place of protection.

We operate as though we are living in a dangerous place and if we don't use our skills we will be annihilated. Remember to explore your partnership with your guide, for it is here you will find you have no need of protection. You are complete, whole and free.

Let us explore more deeply the part of the relationship that seemed to work. That part was the love of the children. We have said that a relationship cannot last if the needs of the individuals were not met, and now we say that the concern and love for the children worked. We mean that even though the couple did not get their personal needs met, they were able to usurp them by focusing on the children. But we will see that in the long run this usurping of personal needs can backfire.

It is always most appropriate to respond to one's real truth for the children then can experience authenticity. You will likely think that the result of dedicating one's life to the children would result in children who are secure and independent. In fact, this is frequently not the case. The children become convinced that the role of people and society is to cater to their needs. They rarely realize that true happiness comes from service to others. You will undoubtedly realize when the experience of parenthood arises that you are in a unique position to invest your children with a degree of trust in what life has to offer. Either you will create a climate of "what's in it for me" or a climate of "what can I give." It is difficult to try to compromise with these attitudes for if there is the slightest hint of self-serving to serving, it becomes self-serving.

You can imagine what would happen if there were no checks and balances in life. Children would attempt to get the love that they really are, from sources outside of themselves instead of turning to their own feelings. Then we would have a world that could easily be manipulated by any powerful source. The checks and balances of life are the opportunities that exist for correction to be made. Such a check and balance system worked with our main character. She saw that she allowed tradition and a powerful script to live her life for her and the undoing of this script meant constant paying attention to her truth. Even though the cost appeared high it was a necessary price to pay for her freedom to fly and be whom she really was. The hatchling would eventually prove its existence and the shell of illusion would break away.

Turning to another character in our story let us look at our daughter. She eventually chose marriage and parenthood as a means to greater fulfillment. But her path was not smooth. She suffered greatly from the emotional unsteadiness she viewed as was her price for coming from a 'broken home.' She was unable to forgive her mother for what she saw was the main problem. This harsh judgment formed a shell around her heart which manifested as cold, selfish unconcern. She flew to a place of strict rules and regulations where judgement was king and the game of life was played with winners and losers. However, this dear one too, was purely love, covered with a box of her own making. She chose a box that allowed none of her family members to enter and still her guide was with her always...waiting to be acknowledged and waiting to burst forth with love, help, and support for her. What could this dear one do? She could open up to the truth within and open up to her guidance.

You will undoubtedly think that this method of dealing with problems represents a benign way of dealing with the complexity of human behavior. And yet you will come to realize that the safety you feel is a safety far beyond our ordinary understanding of safety. Only by experiencing the feeling of safety that comes from guidance can you understand the peace that passeth understanding. Imagine a tranquillity that is boundless. A tranquillity that has as its center a heart radiating love. This is what you really are...a Love Center of Peace. I urge each reader to come to this tranquil place and to rest here often. As you join with this love you will realize it is the Truth of your Being. Descriptions are no substitute for the reality of experience. Be present in this moment and join with your guide.

But dear reader, I cannot do it for you...you are a free-willed expression of the Father and you must choose.

Let us return to our story. Now we will look at the separation that eventually created the black hole of emptiness our wife and mother experienced. The separation really happened only in her mind or thinking. She was connected all the time with her guide only she was ignorant of this. It was only after the experience of giving up being 'the authorizer' that she finally began to experience connection. It was only after she gave up and let go of her ego involvement that the Light that she really was began to show forth.

Her guide would say "You are the Light" over and over until the words penetrated the darkness and her illusions disappeared as the nothingness they were. Would there ever be a reason for living in illusion? Only because of ignorance for once the truth is experienced one will never go back to that empty dead state of unreality. Aliveness tasted, is aliveness loved and lived...never to return to the non-reality of illusion.

We shall really want to examine the reasons for divorce more thoroughly. The reasons were not as clear as the reasons for staying together had been. An uncertainty existed. An uncertainty that marriage was the true fulfillment it had been expected to be. This uncertainty manifested as a desire for excitement, for meaning and experience based on the physical sensation of pleasure. Pleasure was equated with meaning. Pleasure translated into physical sensations of intenseness.

Pleasure is rarely meaningful in and of itself because it is limited to a certain time and certain circumstances. Pleasure is the result of a sudden feeling of well being and satisfaction related to the body. What is the physical body if not a source of meaning?

The physical body represents a time-limited frame of reference that doesn't truly reflect Reality. You may question this premise for you say that reality can only be experienced through the bodily senses. Well, what if I were to tell you that Reality is the state of nonsensical experience? Reality is the state of experience in which the physical sensations are abandoned in favor of a state of awareness which is eternal. This state is best grasped in the state of meditation. For here we can most easily abandon our bodily sensations and join with Pure Consciousness. Consciousness is an envelope engulfing the earth and the universe and the universes beyond. It is the etheric web of matter that holds all in its meaning. Our meaning and purpose is best grasped when we are in this state. I would encourage you to begin the practice of meditation. Our character did this and found transformation of her barren life into the rich meaning it is becoming, meaning beyond anything her thinking could have imagined.

I intend to demonstrate to you an experiment that will give you a taste of the experience of Conscious Awareness, since you really don't know or can't know what we are talking about here without the experience itself happening. Let us attempt to show you first hand.

Take a look at your hand. Is it not composed of flesh and blood, muscle and tissue matter that is physical? Yes. Now take a look at your face in the mirror. What do you see? You see a globe of flesh on a neck with eyes, nose, mouth, etc. You are certain this represents who you are. Now close your eyes and think of the substance of you. You will find that the 'you' you think about is really only identifiable when you use adjectives related to self as conscious movement. Let me explain further.

Self, who you really are sees its being as an experiencer. It sees a reflection of action of movement. This reflection of action of Mind is intent upon bringing forth Meaning to experience.

True reflection will bring forth the image that it is focusing on, and it will invest this with Meaning. The process of investing with Meaning is what we call Consciousness. The movement is felt in Mind and is not dependent upon the physical world as we know it. It is a movement that transcends time, place, and actually happens in eternity. For without time and place we enter into eternal Oneness with Him who is All, the Father-Mother God, the Consciousness of Life and the Everlasting.

Travel now to the place we know as Eden. What could have happened in a garden that relates to our story? A man and a woman were placed there to procreate and they experienced the fullness of the Father-

Mother God. They were the Primal couple and knew no other source or center than the Prime Mover. What happened? The woman wanted to experience her body separate from her Source. She liked it and encouraged her partner to be separate and ohhh....the thrill of deciding so much on their own."I get to decide this and you get to decide that "... What fun. And soon the couple lost their relationship with their Source...self authorizing began. Had they listened to their Truth they would have discovered that what they had done was close down the pipeline of connectedness to their Source.

So we learn now in the dawning of the new millennium that this state is about to be reversed. We are coming into connection again and finding the wonderful flow of the Father/Mother God moving in and through and as us. Remember the moment of revelation of our main character? She saw and experienced Love and became the Love that she really was.

Soon you will begin to feel your Self coming into transformation for it will happen to everyone. We all are interconnected in the most fundamental way, and like a spark in the flames of an unquenchable fire, enlightenment is approaching. A time to rejoice. For truly it is not long until awakening will happen spontaneously around the globe.

So ends our Discourse on Divorce and Divinity and so ends our time of separation from the Source. It is truly a time for turning inward dear ones, truly a time for listening to your own guide and Knowing the Truth of your Being. You are Love and you are a Child of your Maker. Ever One With Him Who Is All.

EPILOGUE

As this writing closes there are a few thing to remember specifically. Perhaps the most important is that whatever befalls you, you are Never Alone. Our separated sense of self must come to an end, for mankind can no longer afford to live from this place of chaos and incompleteness. We indeed are on the verge of a new chapter in mankind's unfolding. Let us therefore live our lives from a place of Infinite Connection, for indeed that is the Truth of our Being.

You are indeed connected in the most profound way with All That Is. It is hoped that this book has brought you closer to letting go of your conditioned thinking. There is no greater happiness for the One writing this than to have you share in the Oneness.

Now it is time to bid you "Good-Bye." And, as in all fond farewells, I give you my love and extend an invitation to you to fully partake of the feast that has been laid before you in this writing.

Go forth fully nourished. Incorporate the goodness into your Conscious Awareness and grow into your Wholeness. Let go of that which is keeping you from your Truth and come to realize that what is written here is indeed a passage from the fourth dimension to your plane of existence.

The indivisible Oneness that is the Father expressing includes you, dear one. You are, indeed, Divine!
