

Your Constant Friend

I accept and love you as you are,
I see what's really true,
Nothing there offends Me,
I love the Whole of you.

I hold you close, right to Me,
As One, we join, entwine,
I know you're perfect, whole, and free,
Engulfed in love, you're Mine.

You may have felt rejection,
From some you thought were true,
Causing you to question,
Is it them or you?

You wonder if you're mental,
Are you lacking there?
Self doubt leaves its shadow,
Does any body care?

Dear, I'm here to tell you,
Never are you alone,
Just quiet, clear your mindset,
Let peace be what is known.

Then ask that I be present,
I'll hear you anywhere,
Just call My Name I'm with you,
Your Constant Friend is there.

A Friend, a Guide, a Brother,
In true love we are bound,
And in our quiet joining,
True sanity is found.

Now you see all others,
In love light's clarity,
They're not looked on as strangers,
They're truly family.

Claim our friendship, dear one,
Claim who you really are,
You are God's point of light, dear,
You are His Shining Star.

Let Me close this poem now,
For I see you've heard what's true,
I am with you always,
As One Great Love, with you.
